FAIR CROWD REACHES 12,000 FOR HIGH MARK

Seven Thousand Paid Admissions Checked at Gate on Third Day.

RODEO SWELLS THRONG

Eighty-First Exposition To End Tonight; Show Starts at 8 P. M.

Yesterday set a high mark in fair attendance when 12,000 persons visited Marion county's eighty-first agricultural exposition. Thursday's attendance swelled the total number of fair visitors to 15,000.

Seven thousand persons paid at the gate yesterday, while another 5,000 were on the grounds as exhibitors and pass holders. Many climbed fences in lieu of the 25 cents admission charge.

Rodeo Draws Crowd

Many of these paid another 25 cents to sit in the grandstand, some paying 50 cents and obtaining a reserved seat. At the King Bros. rodeo performance last night, 1,729 persons jammed the grand stand, while another 500 persons wishing seats in the stand were turned away. The stand was well filled for Thursday afternoon's races.

The fair swung into its final stages today. To assure success from a financial standpoint, the fair crowd today should touch the 10,000 mark, Secretary Carl Sifritt said this morning. Several thousand school children were given passes good for admittance today.

Exhibitors were preparing to remove their displays late this afternoon. Thousands yesterday viewed the largest number of exhibits ever seen on the local grounds.

Every department of the fair was well patronized yesterday. The midway of sideshows and other concessions enjoyed the patronage of hundreds, and commercial and industrial displays, as well as exhibits, were viewed by thousands.

Judging Completed

The King Bros. rodeo will wind up the fair activities in its 8 p. m. program today.

Judging was completed yesterday, and Secretary Sifritt said this morning that a list of first premium winners will be available this afternoon or Saturday.

Fair officials and police yesterday were unable to check the hundreds of persons clambering over fences to enter the grounds without charge. Preparations were made to guard the fences more thoroughly today.

BLAMES JUDGE FOR ACCOUNT SHORTAGE

Former Court Clerk of Portsmouth Denies Responsibility for Discrepancies.

By The Associated Press

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 2—A story of friendship with a judge whom she blamed for alleged shortages in her account was told by Mrs. Marguerite A. Tidd, 35, former municipal court clerk who is on trial charged with embezzling $2,115.

Mrs. Tidd, testifying in her own behalf yesterday, declared Municipal Judge William B. Sprague, 50, was responsible for discrepancies in her account, but that she resigned and took the responsibility with the understanding she would receive half-pay and be reemployed after the November election.

She also declared that as a result of her friendship with the judge, he paid her husband $1,500 to prevent the latter from "filing suit." She became acquainted with Sprague three years ago and a year ago went to New York with him on a week's trip which cost the judge $300 she testified.

"I made no attempt to get money from Sprague and was not a party to the suit," Mrs. Tidd said, in telling of the alleged financial transaction between her husband and the judge.

"My husband told me he got $1,500 and then he came back to live with me after we were separated 10 days." "I loved my husband and wanted him back."

Mrs. Tidd resigned her clerkship last May 3.

TWO YOUNG ARMY AVIATORS KILLED

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Oct. 2—A cross-country flight from March field, Riverside, Calif., to the Canadian border and return has ended with the death of two promising army fliers in San Francisco Bay.

The men, Lieutenants Robert W. Custer, Aberdeen, Wash., and Wilburn H. Hinton, Ark., left late Thursday with their disabled plane last night. They were attached to the army air corps reserve. Both were under 25 years of age.

Altercation Ends When Clerk Hits Tax Auditor

T. A. O'Leary Bound to Grand Jury on Assault, Battery Charge After Exchange of Words Brings Fistic Encounter.

A heated exchange of words reached a sudden climax in the county commissioners' office this morning when T. A. O'Leary, clerk of the board, struck at Clarence Bushong, of Prospect, an accountant in the employ of Marion county tax reduction groups, grazing the accountant's face.

As a result, O'Leary, charged with assault and battery in an affidavit sworn to by Bushong, is awaiting action of the grand jury.

Pleads Not Guilty

O'Leary pleaded not guilty and waived examination when arraigned before Acting Municipal Judge Hector S. Young this morning. He posted $100 bond and was released.

Bushong, employed by the tax reduction groups to investigate the handling of public funds, went to the commissioner's office this morning to ask for certain records, he said. While O'Leary hunted the records for him, the clerk remarked that Bushong's attitude in the investigation of tax affairs had been "that of a skunk."

"You're a skunk, too," Bushong retorted.

Although a railing was between them at the time this remark was made, O'Leary swung at Bushong's face, his fist grazing the accountant's cheek as he stepped back. He fled, threatening to have the clerk arrested. Bushong this morning said the blow cut the inside of his cheek.

Words With Tax Groups

Bushong formerly was employed in the state bureau of accounting. For several months, he has been obtaining figures from county offices for use of committees, and working with committees representing the Marion County Taxpayers' association, the Farm bureau, the grange and the chamber of commerce, which made suggestions to the county commissioners for reductions in the county budget.

Bushong and O'Leary were alone in the office at the time. No one witnessed the altercation.

World Honors Hindenburg on 84th Birthday

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Oct. 2—President Von Hindenburg, who leads the fatherland in peace as well as in war, was 84 years old today and the world beat a tattoo of congratulations upon his doorstep.

Cablegrams, telegrams and letters came by the thousands to the executive mansion to wish him many happy returns and many more anniversaries. A typical message from the government of Saxony read: "The nations remain confident of your leadership toward a better future."

VON HINDENBURG

Owing to the pressure of state affairs the president spent the day with his family instead of hunting and fishing on his country estate among the peaceful hills of Bavaria. The first to greet him were his granddaughters, Gertrude, 8, and Helga, 7, and his son Oscar.

As a possible sign of the times, there were fewer presents than in previous years but petitions of all sorts increased tenfold.

Thirteen years ago on this very date he saw the hitherto impregnable Hindenburg line waver and collapse under the united assaults of the allied forces under Marshal Foch.

Today as president of the first German republic he is once more the field marshal leading the nation in a peace-time war against the onslaughts of economic depression and political dissension.

He is nearing the end of a seven-year term in which Germany rehabilitated herself from the effects of post-war disillusionment, revolution and monetary inflation only to fall prey to the ravages of world-wide maladjustments.

Prouts had been the object of intensive search since his yesterday when it was discovered by his short approximately $2,000 in city funds of which he had been custodian.

INVESTIGATE CHILD'S DEATH

Two-Month-Old Baby of Marion County Residents Unclaimed at Undertakers.

PARENTS FROM KENTUCKY

Father Said To Be in Jail and Mother Disappears from Home.

An investigation was to be made this afternoon by Marion county authorities into circumstances surrounding the death of a two-month-old child at a rural home five miles south of Marseilles last Sunday. County Prosecutor R. M. Wilhelm today said he would ask Sheriff C. C. Fye to investigate the matter.

Body Unclaimed

According to Bingham & Bros. Co., Upper Sandusky undertakers, the child, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gully who recently moved there from Kentucky, died Sunday night after an illness. An undertaker was not called until Monday night, when a neighbor went to the house.

The undertakers say Mrs. Gully, also ill, objected to the undertakers removing the body, but the body was taken to Upper Sandusky and prepared for burial.

Mother Leaves Home

Meantime, Mrs. Gully is reported to have left her home. Her husband left about a week ago to bring someone from Kentucky to care for her and her sick child. Reports from Kentucky say the father of the dead child is in jail in Kentucky on a liquor transporting charge, according to the undertakers. They also say the mother refused to give them any information about the child.

L. Pond, resident engineer of the Chinese international famine relief commission at Tunnanfu, Yunnan province.

Pond declared 25,000 persons perished and 5,000 square miles of territory were inundated as the result of continual rains in the Yentsing district of northern Yunnan province.

In the bottom picture Pepper Martin, Cardinal outfielder, is shown being thrown out at second base in a fast double play in the fourth inning.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON CLAIMED BY DEATH

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 2—Sir Thomas Lipton died here tonight.

The 80-year-old yachtsman, as popular in the United States as he was at home, became gravely ill from the effects of a chill contracted several days ago and yesterday was reported near death.

Internationally famous yachtsman and tea merchant, Sir Thomas spent more than 20 years of his life and nearly $10,000,000 of his vast fortune nursing a hobby to win back for England the America's cup—a silver yachting trophy actually worth a hundred guineas.

He was born May 10, 1851, at Glasgow, Scotland, of Irish parents. After a brief schooling, he was compelled to seek work to aid his parents in their struggle for a livelihood, but after two years as a messenger boy, the lure of bigger things got the better of him.

A self-made man, Lipton's first recognition from the British royal family came in 1897, when he was knighted for contributing 25,000 pounds sterling to supply the tea drunk by 300,000 poverty stricken Londoners, during the week of Queen Victoria's jubilee. In 1901 he was created Knight Commander of the Victorian Order, and a year later he was made a Baronet. He was a personal friend of the late King Edward VII, who was a man after Lipton's own heart, and Sir Thomas often entertained the king on his steam yacht. It is related that the king narrowly escaped death upon one occasion while aboard a Lipton racing yacht when the mast carried away.

Sir Thomas' persistence in his efforts to "lift the cup" despite defeats and his unfailing good-fellowship won him many friends and thousands of admirers in America. On his visits here with his racing yachts he was widely entertained sometimes making long tours about the country, receiving a cordial welcome as a sportsman whom no defeat could discourage.

Physically Lipton was tall, straight and of medium build. His skin was whipped brown by the winds, his mustache and little goatee were full gray, his gait betrayed the roll of a sailor, and his blue eyes carried the half-roguish twinkle born of humor, of which Sir Thomas had a goodly share.

Lipton never married, and under English law his great estate probably will go to distant relatives. Once, in conversation with newspapermen, he named his two greatest regrets.

"The first and foremost is that I never have lifted the America's cup, and the second is that I never have been married," he said.

London was the home in which the baronet spent most of his time.

300 Admirers Have Luncheon with Mahatma

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 2—Three hundred admirers of Mahatma Gandhi, apostle of them Hindus, had luncheon with him today in honor of the slight third birthday, but for each guest there was only one pear, one banana, one apple and one orange.

There was no water, except for Mahatma himself who drank goat's milk, but the food is the thing, a ritual at all public dinners in England, was omitted. The Indian's aid Labor party and two Indian societies in London were hosts.

At a birthday gift the students received a bolt of Indian cotton and from which to spin their own thread.

He said but the only proof he is doing anything. One young disciple said with very little the Mahatma spoke to the students of the Indian problem and the need for unity in their land which they now divided.

TODAY'S GAME MARKS CRISIS

May Actually Decide Outcome of Series; Probable Pitchers Named.

By United Press

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2—World series warfare, begun in victory by Connie Mack's almost perfect Philadelphia Athletics, and undefeated by Gabby Street's partly crippled St. Louis Cardinals, was the attraction which drew thousands of fans back to Sportsman's park today.

Parity Fulfilled

Experts had said that Grove would win if he pitched the first game. Also, they predicted the Athletics would win the series. Grove did pitch the first game and one forecast was realized. What will happen to the other prediction remained to be seen.

Unlike the first contest, today's game assumed an importance unrivalled in recent world series competition. If the Athletics win today the race might as well quit worrying about the Cards' chances. They'll be all in last ball and yard.

Mickey Cochrane, Athletic catcher, gives one big sigh-of on that subject. Mickey isn't given to bragging, but ask him things about the series and he's one thing only there to say, "All I know is, we're going to win it."

Probable starting pitchers for today's game: Athletics, George Earnshaw; Cardinals, Jesse Haines.

A trip back to the days when the Cardinals were a cellar team and Rogers Hornsby (Rajah) Bathazar Johannes Hornsby, St. L., would pitch for the Cards' first game, almost everybody said, but Sir Barton would be George Earnshaw, a right hander.

A gloomy sky greeted early risers here but by the second period, at 7 a. m. (busy time in city of the sun and the official predictions say "partly cloudy today."

NOTED FLIERS RESCUED FROM YANGTSE RIVER

Craft Capsizes as Colonel Starts Takeoff on Flood Survey Flight.

SHIP SLIGHTLY DAMAGED

Accident Recalls Former Mishap to Famous Couple on Mexico Try.

By The Associated Press

HANKOW, Oct. 2—Thrown into the turbid flood waters of the Yangtse river when their plane capsized here today, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh escaped a fate that had overtaken scores of thousands of Chinese in recent weeks.

The plane, bearing the Lindberghs and Dr. P. Z. King, Chinese relief worker, upset when one wing struck the water as the colonel was turning it about preparatory to taking off from the river on a flood survey flight.

Tossed into the swift stream while wearing their cumbersome flying togs the flying couple were rescued along with the doctor by a lifeboat crew from the British aircraft carrier Hermes.

The plane had just been lowered from the flying deck of the Hermes, where Lindbergh had been keeping it during his sojourn here, with the flying couple and the physician in the cockpits. They were about to leave for the Tungting lake region, 75 miles southwest of here.

One wing struck the water as the plane turned about, capsizing the craft and throwing the Lindberghs and Dr. King into the river.

The Hermes lowered a lifeboat and pulled the trio out of the water in short order. The plane then was picked up and lifted to the deck of the Hermes.

The accident temporarily ended the survey flights, which have been in progress since Lindbergh arrived in China from Japan several days ago. The plane probably will be taken to Shanghai for repairs. It was expected the fliers would depart for Shanghai on the Hermes Sunday with the damaged craft.

Two planes from the Hermes, which were circling above when the accident occurred, later made a survey up the river.

Previous Trouble on Trip

It was the second case of serious trouble for the Lindberghs since leaving New York, July 29, on their flight to the far east.

Aug. 18 they are forced by motor trouble to descend at Avatcha bay on the southern end of the Kamchatka peninsula shortly after taking off from Petropavlovsk for a 967-mile flight to Nemuro, Japan.

Upon repairing the trouble they started again, but encountered a

Steers Play Rough Golf "Game;" Rodeo Is Sued

An impromptu "wild west" show yesterday, the aftermath of the dance Tuesday of 35 cows from the King Bros. rodeo at the fairgrounds, may end the rodeo here.

How Do Chorus Girls Manage?

The theatre knows no "sick list." Chorus girls just can't be "absent." Regardless of their monthly sickness, they must be in line, on time, on their toes, and smiling. How do they do it? Nature doesn't spare them. They menstruate, of course; but stop the pain for hours at a stretch, by the use of a perfectly harmless medicine called Midol.

It acts in seven minutes. Relief is complete. The pain is gone. You menstruate in comfort. Midol is not a narcotic and offers no interference with nature. All druggists; ask simply for Midol.

She rubbed one hand wearily over her eyes. "It makes me wonder just what kind of a person I am. I wonder whether I never loved him at all. Is it possible that I was just attracted to him because he was so different; because his life seemed so glamorous; because my own seemed so impossible? I hope so, but I don't know. I only know that I'm ashamed."

"Don't be ashamed." Peak spoke roughly. "What have you to be ashamed of? It isn't your fault if you've changed your mind. It isn't important whether you ever loved him or not. The only important thing is that you don't love him now. That's what we've got to realize and understand. What does it mean? It's so sudden and so contrary to everything I've been thinking for so long that I can't quite grasp it. What does it mean, Sam? Where do you and I stand now?"

"I've been thinking about that all afternoon and evening, and I'm not sure. I'm only sure that from now on, Peak, you can trust me. From now on there are going to be no more reservations and no more deceptions. Whatever I say to you you can believe. You can believe, for instance, that I am ready to marry you, if you still want me—knowing what you do."

"You mean," asked Peak slowly, "that you're still willing to go through with it."

"It means more. It means that I want to go through with it."

"Why?"

"That's a hard question to answer, Peak, but I'm going to try to do it." Sam spoke carefully, choosing every word. "I've liked you ever since I've known you, but never quite so much or in quite the same way as I've liked you since Fourth made his money. I suppose it's because we're equals now. When I look at you now I don't see money. I see you, and I like what I see. Last night you kissed me. I found that I wanted you to kiss me, and that I wanted to kiss you in return. Why?

"No." She interrupted when Peak would have spoken. "Let me finish this, please. At lunch today Freddy asked me another question that I haven't told you about yet. He asked me if I was positive that I did not love you. I couldn't say yes. I tried but I couldn't. Why not?"

"Sam!"

"Wait a minute, I'm not quite through. Ever since luncheon I've been wondering why I couldn't say yes to that question of Freddy's. I've been wondering why I wanted to kiss you last night. I couldn't find the answer. At the moment I'm wondering something else."

"What?"

"Nothing much. I'm just wondering why I want to kiss you now."

"Sam!" He turned swiftly and pulled her into his arms. Her face, a small, indistinct white blur was very close to him. "Do you know what you're telling me?" he demanded fiercely. "Do you know what you're saying? You're saying that you love me!"

"Am I?" She lay very still in his arms. "I hope I am. I think I am. I've been thinking about it and thinking about it till my head hurts. I'm tired of thinking now. Kiss me, Peak."

He kissed her.

Considerably later Sam informed Peak that it was time he went home. "It must be past midnight," she said dreamily, looking up into his face, "and you're tired. We really should get some sleep."

"Sleep?" Peak laughed. "What is sleep? What is time? What, moreover, is fatigue? However—Do you really want me to go?"

"No." She shook her head. "I don't. I just thought—"

"There you go, thinking again! Why think? Relax!"

"It's a grand night," Sam said. "As a matter of fact, it is the only night that has ever really happened," he told her.

"Are you happy, Peak?"

He sighed. "The girl has the supreme effrontery to ask me if I'm happy!"

"I take it that you are," She nodded. "That's good, because I'm happy too."

There was a pause, and then Peak said suddenly: "I have a feeling that something is going to happen. It's more than a feeling; it's a conviction. It grows upon me."

"Really?" She was vaguely alarmed. "What is it?"

To Be Continued.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

THE last day of school this week, and I was so sorry that when me and Jubilee woke up I turned a handspring in bed and missed the bed and sot down on the floor so hard that it shook the house, and my mother came to the stair door and asted me what was the matter. I told her I fell out of bed, and then she asted me if I had hurt myself, and I told her not where it would show, and I heard her laughing when she closed the door. I didn't see anything so funny about it.

I let Jubilee down and went down and done my milking and then I strained the milk and fed my face and we all went to the pasture, and then we went around past Feeble's house to see why the girls hadn't showed up, and they were there and told us to come on in and see her mother bathe the twins, and we started to go in but the twins didn't have on any more clothes than a rabbit, so we gave one look and skun out. Girls haven't got any sense. Boys haven't got very much sometimes. We ought to know they don't bathe twins with their clothes on.

When we got to school we were going to play pull-away but Mush's wife came out and said for us to keep still because Mush was asleep. She told us they had tooken him in an ambulance and had an X-ray made and he will be all right pretty soon. She said the doctor thought he had a crack in his vertebray but he didn't. I said that was the first time I ever heard anyone's head called that, but I'd but he did have a crack in it. Mush's wife went in and slammed the basement door, and Younise told me that a vertebray is a bone in a man's back. I asted her if women didn't have them and she said if they did she hadn't ever heard of it.

We went in school, and some kids had pieces to speak, it being Friday. The Last Bag of Tripe tried to speak one and we all held our noses and looked sick, so that he forgot what he wanted to say. And the teacher looked around and caught us at it and the whole room had to stay after school. Any boy that likes to speak pieces is a mut and most any kid can lick him.

Mush's wife let us go in to see him when we got out, and he was setting up in bed eating something. There was a big bowl on a table and his wife had put a big spunge with grass seed and it was growing and was pretty slick. We got talking about the twins and the Last Bag of Tripe told Mush Feeble's mother was going to drownd one of them because it looked like Feeble, and Feeble grabbed the spunge and flang it acrosst the bed soaked him in the face with it and he looked like a mess. Mush's wife ran us all out. I never saw anyone so mad. Feeble shouldn't have done it I told her so, and she said if she thought that much of a little grass she'd bring her an armfull of hay. I'm glad she isn't my sister.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Turns to Other Tasks

FOR a second or two following my mother-in-law's question to the boys I was tense with suspense as to how they would react to her request—or rather command that they promise not to go downstairs unless accompanied by some older person. If they resented her attitude to me, enough to refuse the promise, I knew that I was in for an extremely bad quarter of an hour.

But I need not have feared for them. They waited, it is true, until it seemed to me that the silence would never be broken, but when they did speak, their assent was unanimous and apparently hearty.

"Sure, we'll promise," they said, "but can we go out on the veranda now?"

"Yes, you may, but shut the door after you go so Faith won't hear your noise. I'm having her have her nap in here this morning," she went on, "she certainly gets enough fresh air on that veranda night and day, so that a little quiet nap inside won't hurt her once."

In her tone was the intolerance of the fresh air regime that so many other women have, but I had no time to come to Katherine's defense nor did my mother-in-law wish conversation upon anything save one subject.

Madge Is Reassured

"Now sit down here and tell me everything that has happened," she commanded, and drawing my chair up to hers I related the whole story of the morning's adventures.

"What has been done" she demanded, "about keeping those desperadoes away from the farmhouse? If they've done this to a mere messenger, what will they try to do to you?"

I parried the second question and answered the first one.

"Dicky has gone to consult father and I think they will work out a plan between them, but they agree with us, I am sure, that the small boys should be kept on the second floor for a time."

"I should hope so," my mother-in-law said with emphasis. "Well! there's one thing. You don't need to worry about their being safe up here. I shall not stir from the second floor as long as they have to be up here."

Her shoulders were squared, her head turned back, with a determination that would have been ludicrous if it had not been so strong an element of sincerity. I knew that if the occasion should arise this feeble old woman would willingly suffer any torture before she would permit any harm to come to her beloved grandchildren.

Madge Shares a Secret

"If you'll stay here now," she said, "until I can go to my room and put on something thinner, you won't need to come up the rest of the day."

"That is wonderful of you, mother," I said sincerely; "I imagine they'll need me downstairs, especially if they decide to operate on that poor chap."

"That may be," she said, "but I shan't need you up here after this few minutes. Now remember, don't go downstairs while I'm gone, no matter how many times they send for you. I'll only be a few minutes."

"I'll stay right here," I promised and she hurried out of the room. No sooner had she closed the door than I opened the door upon the veranda and called the boys in.

"Boys," I said, "can you keep a secret with me?"

Their eyes brightened—they had looked distinctly sulky when I opened the door, and they spoke eagerly.

"I want you to do some things for me while you are up here," I said. "But I don't want you to tell grandma that I have asked you to do them. You won't have to tell her a story about it. If you're careful, she won't notice that you are doing it, and if she asks you what you're doing them for, you can say 'Why you and Mants both told us we must take care of Baby Faith, and this is the way we're doing it.'"

The Boys the Guard

"Sure!" Junior said. "That's what we'll do. What is it you want of us?"

"I want you to take turns patrolling the upper hall, going to each of the windows in turn, and seeing if you see anything suspicious from the upper windows. How good are your eyes? How far can you see when the weather is clear?"

"Oh a long way. I guess almost a mile.

"You mean a half a mile," Roderick said in superior fashion, and I forbore wounding either of them by doubting their bombastic boasts.

"You will need good eyes," I told them, "but I want you to watch very carefully from the windows and the veranda, to see if you can detect any movement in the cornfield or orchard."

"You mean," Junior said excitedly, "if we see anything that looks like the Chinese men?"

All Safely "Parked"

"Exactly," I said. "If you do, one of you stay and watch and the other one must run and tell one of the grown-ups right away."

"We'll do it," they chorused. "Shall we begin now?"

"Yes, do," I said, glad to have them out of the way when their grandmother came back.

But when I finally went downstairs, I had the assurance that my mother-in-law and the children were safely "parked" as Dicky would say for the next few hours, and that I would be free to help in whatever tasks the care of the wounded Chinese would entail. In the back of my mind there was a worried question as to the time I would be able to give to the fourth act of my play, the first draft of which I had just completed. But I shoved the thought still further back into my consciousness. No matter what else happened anywhere, the first concern of all of us must now be the discovery of what the malevolent Chinese meant to do.

J. H. Warren, vocational agricultural instructor at Radnor, who has been a judge at the last three junior expositions said that the quality of the exhibits was improving each year.

Speaker Here

B. P. Sandles, manager of the Ohio State junior fair, visited the junior fair here and complimented the management highly on the grade and number of exhibits. His visit was in recognition of the fine showing made by the Marion county vocational agricultural departments at the state junior fair when they were the largest exhibitors of any other county in the state.

Figures on the exhibits show that this year's junior fair was about 20 per cent larger than last year, with an increase of more than 400 per cent in the home economics display which over-crowded the available space, necessitating the construction of additional display cases.

A premium list was released today showing the receivers of approximately 345 prizes in the judging of the junior fair exhibits. First, second and third prizes were awarded in 115 classes.

The exhibits filled two halls at the fairgrounds, including a new one which was constructed by vocational agriculture students of the county to provide a suitable exposition place.

Shop Exhibit

The shop exhibit was arranged in the center of the main hall, displaying every example of manual training from a solder patch to a step ladder. One part of the display that attracted a large amount of attention was a number of new style chicken feeders designed in the county shop work. They represent the best kind yet devised in the country, Hodson said. Quite a few persons, he said, have taken patterns from the exhibits for their own use. A number of singletrees and doubletrees made by students in the shop work were shown. A surprising event of the judging, Hodson thought, was the first place ribbon awarded to one student in the saw-filing display who had used an old ripsaw, filed cross-cut teeth on it, matched it with much newer saws and won first place. The home economic and vocational agricultural displays in this building also attracted much favorable attention the manager said.

Livestock Exhibits

The building in the rear of the main display hall housed the livestock exhibits of the club workers and vocational agricultural students. The club workers, students near high school work preparing for vocational agricultural projects in high school, displayed about 50 entries. More than 85 entries were shown by the agricultural students. The largest entries in the livestock display were Poland China hogs of the spring gilt class, the market hog class and the spring boar class.

A colored display equipped with electric lights showing the value of the work of the Marion county Future Farmers of America band greeted the spectators eyes upon entering the building. This display told of the purpose, benefits derived and achievements of the organization, the first one of its kind in the United States.

With Certo, you see, only ½ to 1 minute's boiling is necessary, and hence no fruit juice boils away. You usually get, as a result, half again more glasses of delicious jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit.

More than that, if you follow directions, you take no chance of failure. Your jelly will come out full flavored, colorful and with a daintier texture than you've ever known before.

Put up grape jelly . . . and lots of it. Put up grape jam, too. With Certo it is easy.

Certo is a pure fruit product—a concentrated fruit pectin. And pectin, you know, is the substance in fruits which makes jelly "jell." Certo is a product of General Foods Corporation. At all grocers.

Under the Certo label you will find 93 recipes. Each has been carefully worked out for use with Certo. Please remember that in making jam and jelly every fruit is different. No one recipe can be made to fit them all. That is why we developed definite scientific recipes for each fruit. These recipes are your guarantee of perfect jams and jellies with any fruit.

Marion's fall sport activities will get into full swing next week when the first wrestling program of the season is put on at the Steam Shovel gym

Joe Banaski, former light heavyweight champion will be the feature matman of the card He is scheduled to face the tough Irish heavy, Pat Riley

Banaski lost his championship several weeks ago and has added nearly 10 pounds to his weight to enable him to take care of a heavier man He will face a tough man in the big Irisher

Fans are expecting to see the old Banaski in action On his last appearances here, Banaski was more interested in protecting his championship than giving the fans an evening of excitement However, with someone else doing the worrying about the championship belt, Banaski is free to put on a wrestling show in true Banask. style.

Banaski ranks as one of the best light heavyweights in the game He is plenty fast with a wide variety of holds that give his matches an added bit of showmanship

Two heavyweights will face each other in the semi-final Charlie Santon of California has been booked against Dick Lever of Nashville, Tenn.

6-2 VICTORY GIVES MACKS ADVANTAGE

Derringer Hurls Well, but Cracks in Two Innings and Champs Triumph.

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Oct 2—Amid steadily increasing plaudits of a baseball world that knows a truly great team when it sees one, the world champion Philadelphia Athletics have picked up the thread of world series conquests where they dropped it last fall

It isn't so much that the A's seeking a record of three straight series championships whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 6 to 2 yesterday in the opening game of the annual fall diamond classic. One game, important at the start of a short seven game clash, still does not necessarily mean ultimate victory

Rather it was the way the champions of the baseball world, insolent in their confidence, rose up in their might to come from behind and administer a typical Athletics thrashing to a team keyed to the point of desperation in its quest of victory It was the old, old story of athletic power, administered with crushing effect steam-rollering the enemy into broken subjection just when hope was beginning to sprout again

Last fall the Athletics leaped upon these same Cardinals in the world series, blasting them apart at just exactly the psychological moments, to win their second straight world triumph for Connie Mack They entered the first game of the 1931 pageant a natural favorite at 8 to 5, and today, facing the second and last game here until three matches have been played in Philadelphia next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, they stand out a 4 to 1 choice to gather in their third straight series conquest, something never before achieved in the history of baseball

A crowd of 36,529, jamming flag-draped Sportsman's park to within a few hundred of absolutely capacity, paid $105,161 yesterday to see the Athletics, with absolute ease and nonchalance, smother a situation that had dramatic possibilities as great as any opening contest in the history of these time honored duels of the American and National league champions

There was Lefty Grove, probably the greatest southpaw of all times, certainly the finest pitcher of his day, easing his long, lank frame into the hurling box to oppose a giant right handed rookie, Paul Derringer, No 1 man of the Cardinals and the best freshman in the major leagues ever to start the opening world series game for his team.

It was a situation crammed with history making opportunities and the great crowd, basking in the warmth of a blue-murky Indian summer afternoon, caught every bit of the dramatic possibilities

The big rookie, solid and chilly as a cold storage turkey, bent to his task. Four of the first six men to face him went down, lunging futilely at his dazzling curve ball. And in the meantime the Cardinals, swinging from the hip in desperation climbed aboard the mighty Grove

There was something wrong with the great Lefty's curve and control. In the very first inning, after he had fanned little Andy High, Wally Roettger smacked a single Frankie Frisch shot a single into right on the hit and run play and Jim Bottomley, the hitting bust of the 1930 clashes promptly drove home the first run with a single. And before the inning was over Pepper Martin, the young center fielder, like Derringer, a newcomer to this sort of thing, banked out a long double and a second run was scored

Then the champion were held until they turned their power loose on the rookie in the fourth

Jimmy Dykes bounced a single over third, first hit off the rookie, and Dib Williams, sensational young shortstop, cracked a safe shot into right. Grove fanned for the first of three times and Max Bishop's grounder led to Dykes being trapped off third Mule Haas belted a double into left and one run was over Mickey Cochrane walked. But there were two out and the big crowd sat tense as Derringer, his head fading, worked on the greatest slugger of them all, Al Simmons. The big youngster got three balls and two strikes on the major league hitting champion One more strike, even a ball hit so that a fielder could handle it and Derringer might have come through to hear his name sung today all over the baseball world Instead the crucial pitch was an inch or so wide Simmons walked And the deluge came with the run he forced in Big Jimmy Foxx hammered a vicious single through the infield, another pair of runs counted, and the game was on ice

Later, in the seventh inning, when it meant little except for the picture value, Simmons plucked off a high wide ball and planted it in the left field bleachers Mickey Cochrane, who had singled, scored ahead of him Derringer left the game at the end of the seventh and Sylvester Johnson hied the A's hitless for the last two.

Grove, hit harder than was expected, coasted in after the big fourth inning although the Cards reached him for 12 hits one more than the A's got off Derringer

RED WINGS SQUARE SERIES, WINNING 5-2

ST PAUL, Oct. 2—With their little world series all even at one game apiece, Rochester and St. Paul had an open date today

The Rochester Red Wings, champions of the International league squared the count yesterday with a 5 to 2 victory over St. Paul, pennant winners of the American association The Saints won the first game, 4 to 0,

Heidelberg Star

Above is pictured Charlie Wilcox, Heidelberg flash, who is one of the boys Ohio Wesleyan will be called upon to stop Saturday if the Bishops are to shatter the 19-game winning streak of the Student Princes. Wilcox played a big part in Heidelberg's victory over Wesleyan last season.

It was in this game, the first of his college career, that he took the ball for the first time and raced 90 yards for a touchdown. Can he do that little trick again? That's what the Bishops would like to know?

OHIO STATE TO OPEN CAMPAIGN AGAINST BEARCATS SATURDAY

Ohio Wesleyan Seeks To Halt Victory Rush of Heidelberg at Delaware.

By The Associated Press

After a desultory start last weekend, Ohio's football season gets under way with full steam tonight and tomorrow

Ohio state's 1931 bow, an intersectional contest, and Ohio Wesleyan's effort to shatter Heidelberg's winning streak are among the highlights of the 21 games carded.

Three of the contests will be played tonight, with Wittenberg tackling John Carroll in the headliner The Lutherans, regarding the game one of the most important of their season, will have the advantages of weight and experience

Kenyon will go to Xavier and Findlay, last year's champions of the Northwest conference, will seek a second victory over an Ohio conference team at the expense of Muskingum in tonight's other two skirmishes

The University of Dayton will be at Boston college for tomorrow's only intersectional battle

Western Reserve will be one of Purdue's opponents in a double-header at Lafayette Ind., to provide another out-of-state game

The Student Princes of Heidelberg will defend a record of 19 straight victories and attempt to repeat last year's conquest of Ohio Wesleyan

Ohio University beaten by a single point by Indiana a week ago, will seek revenge from another Indiana crew Butler university Little Hillsdale, Mich. College, which upset Chicago in half of a double bill last Saturday, will be Denison's foe

Four conference games will pit Ashland against Wooster Baldwin Wallace against Case Hiram against Otterbein and Kent State against Oberlin

Bluffton and Ohio Northern will renew an old rivalry at Ada. Other games will be Urbana at Capital, Mount Union at Bowling Green, Rio Grande at Marietta Ball teachers at Miami, Olivet Mich at Defiance, New River State at Wilmington, and Western Kentucky Teachers at Wilberforce.

EASTERN TEAMS TO MEET MINOR CLUBS IN SATURDAY SKED

Most Schools Have Warm-Up Opponents for Second Week of Series.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—Another charge of the football brigade tomorrow will take in the full roll call for eastern colleges where the gridiron sport is played

Again the program will find the larger colleges rolling up huge scores at the expense of the smaller but there are a few exceptions notably the West Virginia Fordham, Western Maryland-Georgetown and Washington & Jefferson-Carnegie Tech games in the East and Pitt's fray with Iowa at Iowa City

Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania and Navy all open seasons they hope will be more successful than last and none of them should be pressed to win. Yale starts with Maine, Harvard with Bates Princeton with Amherst Penn with Swarthmore and Navy with William & Mary one of the stronger teams of the Virginia conference

Knox college of Galesburg Ill. will attempt to stem the rush of Army ball-carriers, probably with no more chance of success than Buffalo has of halting Dartmouth

HARDING TO PLAY FIRST HOME GAME

Presidents Clash with Delaware at 2:30 P. M. Saturday at Fairground.

Anxious to prove that their brilliant showing against Columbus South High last Saturday night was no fluke, Harding High's gridders tomorrow afternoon will clash with Delaware High school at the fairground field here It will be the first home game of the season for the Presidents and the second game of the year It is called for 2 30 p m

Harding will move against the Desaware eleven Saturday at practically its full strength. Dick Morgan, first string quarterback, is the only regular ailing a minor shoulder injury being likely to keep him on the bench at least part of the game Bob Keller's threatened charlie horse has disappeared and the fiery little redhead is ready to rip off gains for the Presidents

Tough Game Likely

Despite the fact that Harding earned a 6-6 tie with South and Delaware was walloped 27-0 by Catholic Central of Toledo last week, the Bobyermen are likely to find the going pretty rough against the neighboring city team Coach Irvin Carlisle has been working his men in long secret practices this week in preparation for the Harding game and it is certain he will bring a team here vastly improved over that which lost to Catholic Central last week.

In case Morgan goes to the bench tomorrow it is not certain who will fill in his place at quarterback Regardless of who takes his post, Don Lindsey, a fullback, will do the directing of the team. Lindsey is an experienced man in the Harding backfield and probably equal to Morgan when it comes to calling the plays for the team The quartet, Caris, Mason Miley and Smith will probably furnish the substitute for Morgan

May Surprise

The inexperience of Caris is likely to eliminate him as a starter while Miley has shown scarcely enough this week to warrant his starting This narrows the choice down to Mason and Smith, one of which is most likely to get the call if Morgan is unavailable. However, Bobyer may decide to send someone in for Morgan who is not even mentioned in this above quartet.

The line will start against Delaware in the same order as against Columbus South McDaniels and Hagan will be at the ends. Clay back and Ling at tackle, Jeves and Mastin at guard and Williams at center Guthrie and Keller will be at the halves with Lindsey at full entered the room with her!

The Law was on her husband's side—that Latin "Judas" who claimed her child. She came to plead for mercy—armed—prepared to kill, but then—FATE stepped in to play an amazing role in this great true-life story of war, infidelity, and mother love!

"I LOVED that man, Paul-Louis," this confessing woman writes. "I loved him with all the yielding devotion of a country girl from Illinois. We met and married in France during the war, and gladly did I sacrifice all—my citizenship and property—to let him possess me.

"But Paul-Louis was French—a gentleman of a foreign land with a foreign code of morals—and soon his faithless kisses fouled my lips, his honeyed phrases sickened my soul.

"How could I—how could any woman endure such torture and still go on? I had to smuggle our child out of France, because The Law gave it to him. We sailed to New York. He followed and had The Law take my baby from me!

"Frantic—I had almost given up the battle—WHEN—a murderous thought blazed through my mind. At any cost, I'd save my precious baby boy from being brought up to the degrading morals of his faithless father. And so I rushed madly to Paul-Louis' apartment—and it was on that terrifying afternoon—that—I—"

Here, into this thundering climax, Fate hurled a bolt that shook the very depths of this suffering woman's soul. If you love all that is clean and fine in life—if ever you have been tortured with the helpless thought of a loved one's unfaithfulness, here is a tremendous true-life story that will grip you through every starkly-told detail. The story is called HER LORD AND MASTER. You will find it complete in November TRUE STORY MAGAZINE—just as it flowed from the pulsing pen of this brave woman who fought for the Right. BANK OF MT. GILEAD VOTES TO LIQUIDATE

Depositors Protected as Second Institution Takes Over Affairs.

Special to The Star
MT. GILEAD, Oct. 2—Voluntary liquidation of the National Bank of Morrow county here has been voted by the board of directors.

Assets of the bank will be taken over by the Mt. Gilead First National bank. Depositors of the bank, directors say, are fully protected and the First National bank will have charge of the liquidation and will take over its business. Offices of the bank will remain open until its affairs are wound up.

In voting to liquidate, directors said that present conditions made it impossible for three banks here to continue successfully in business. The National Bank of Morrow County, according to its June statement, had resources of $395,-500 and a capital stock of $50,000.

Details of the liquidation were worked out at meetings of the boards of directors of the two banks Wednesday and Thursday nights. The federal comptroller of currency approved the plans.

Fire Damage $15.

Damage estimated at $15 was caused when a kitchen drapery at the home of Gabriel Hood at 500 Lee street caught fire at 1:35 p. m. today. Fire companies No. 2 and 3 answered the call. The drapery was blown against a gas burner and was set ablaze. The kitchen wall paper was also damaged.

GRAIN PRICES MOVE UPWARD

News from Foreign Markets Has Favorable Effect at Chicago.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Oct. 2—Substantial upturns in grain prices early today accompanied rallies in stock market quotations. Unexpected strength shown by the Liverpool wheat market tended also to lift values. Opening ½@¾ to ¾ cent higher, wheat continued to point upward. Corn started at a shade to ¼ gain, and subsequently moved on additional advance.

Wheat bulls emphasized 1,353,000 bushels decrease in Russia's exports during the last week, and called attention to London reports that a serious financial crisis had shaken Russia. The advices said Russia's unfavorable foreign trade balance was rapidly increasing, and that the finance commissar had ordered rural cooperatives to collect debts forthwith, and compel peasants to sell grain. Liverpool reports said grain collections in Russia were much below the quantity planned, that world shipments of wheat were expected to decrease, and the British traders considered recent declines in wheat prices excessive.

Corn and oats derived firmness from wheat price upturns. Advances in corn were in the face of continued big arrivals here. Today's receipts totaled 230 cars, compared with 94 a week ago and 92 at this time last year. Primary arrivals were 683,000 bushels against 373,000 on the corresponding day last week and 397,000 a year ago.

Provisions ascended with hogs and grains.

TWO ONE-ACT PLAYS ON MIMES PROGRAM

Program is Presented at Central Junior High School; Friends Are Guests.

Two entertaining one-act plays were the presentation of the Marion Mimes, at its opening meeting of the season, last night in Central Junior High school. Friends of members were guests.

Between plays, R. B. Hume, president, discussed the problem of securing suitable quarters for future public Mimes' productions. Several members of the group participated in the open discussion which followed. It was voted to leave the matter of securing quarters for the Mimes, to the discretion of the board of directors.

William Rapp led the cast of the play directed by Miss Betty Criesinger. Both plays were comedies, and both were well presented. Mrs Paul Knappenberger directed the first play, the story of a slick woman crook who almost gets away with an expensive jewel through the stupidity of a brain specialist. Mrs. L. Myers appeared in the role of the woman crook, with R. T. Smith in the role of the ingenious detective. Charles Hilcker as the young jewel messenger from whom the jewel was taken, D. W. Tambert as the doctor and Mrs. W. W. Clarke as his assistant.

Rapp played the part of a boy with his first dress suit. Of all the trouble he had in getting to a wedding, which was finally postponed, Rapp made the most. Mrs. Jay Vaughan was his mother. Miss Betty Raub, his sister, and Ernest Arndt, his prospective brother-in-law.

2,000 IN GRANDSTAND FOR RACE PROGRAM

Steve Watts Captures Extra Heat Event; Meet Ends Today.

Sirlit of LaRue taking the third and fourth heats to capture the money. Steve could finish no better than fourth in the opening heat but pushed his way up to second just in the second, losing to Billie The Great by a nose in this heat as the horses put on a neck and neck dash to the wire. Steve romped home ahead of the field by a narrow margin in both the third and fourth heats.

O. Jones, owner and driver of Valiet of Watts, winner of second place money in the 2:24 trot event, was given a big hand by the spectators for his excellent driving of the bay gelding. Jones is the oldest pilot racing at the Marion events and possibly the oldest reinsdriver in the state. He is 82 years old.

The program will close today with another five event program. Three were originally scheduled but the large number of entries necessitate the splitting of some of the races.

For Saturday, Oct. 3.

THE lunar transits for this day bear testimony of some small change of benefit probably a short journey or removal, but there may be attended by rash and impetuous conduct, strife or confusion as well as the menace of unfavorable writings or some deception or slanderous attack. Personal contact may bring an unexpected benefit or pleasure.

Those whose birthday it is may expect some rather minor change or journey during the year, the happy outcome of which may depend on the exercise of personal discretion, coolness and amiability. A child born on this day may be clever, ingenious and skillful but it may be restless, changeable and may lean toward expediency and easy methods of attaining its ends.

Thousands View Biggest Fair Displays in Years

Commercial and Industrial Exhibits Show Newest Developments in Farm and Home Equipment; Livestock Barns Filled with Stock of Marion County Raisers.

Displays depicting every phase of Marion county rural activity, including exhibits of practically every breed of livestock and of every crop grown in this county, have been viewed by thousands of Marion county fair visitors this week.

In the commercial and industrial displays, sightseers were shown the latest in farm machinery and home conveniences. Stoves, electric products, radios and other merchandise were on display.

Grange Displays

A display thoroughly representative of Marion county rural life was to be found in the grange exhibits. Seven granges placed exhibits showing every kind of crop raised in the county. The grange program of upbuilding rural home life was depicted in a number of ways.

Three exhibits depicted the activities of young Marion county workers. In one building, 20 fat and well groomed calves, most of them the pets of high school students, were on display. In another, the Junior fair was housed. Farm shop handiwork, and every kind of displays prepared in schools of the county were shown in the junior fair. Another pen held hogs being raised by Smith-Hughes agricultural students in project work.

The pet stock show, housed with the poultry exhibit, shows promise of becoming a popular department, Secretary Carl W. Sifritt said. Rabbits, dogs and pigeons are on display in this department. The addition of pets to the poultry displays made it necessary to erect two duck pens outside the building.

Sheep Breed New Here

The new Cheviot breed of sheep, whose faces are covered with short hair instead of wool, continued to attract much interest in the sheep displays. Two barns were filled with sheep.

Approximately 150 hogs were entered in the swine department. Many of these were shown with litters of pigs. The weight of animals shown ranged from week-old pigs weighing a few pounds to huge porkers tipping the scales around the 700 mark.

All buildings immediately north of the race track were needed to house race horses. Some of this space was used for exhibits last year.

Farm machinery and other industrial displays were located south of the grandstand. Other smaller displays of merchandise were in and near the fine arts hall.

TRENTON, N. J. — Federal Judge Bourquin of Butte, Mont., who is sitting here, estimates there are 75,000,000 violations of the liquor law each year in New Jersey alone. Commenting to court, he made the estimate, basing it on the statement of the district attorney, that there are at least 10,000 speakeasies in the state. If each sells 20 drinks a day, that makes 75,000,000 violations a year, he said.

CHICAGO — "Whiskey for sale here" and legal! J. M. Doran, commissioner of the bureau of industrial alcohol, says such advertising on the part of pharmacies handling liquor for medicinal purposes will be quite all right.

TIFFIN, O.—Nothing unusual about corn in the shock hereabouts this time of year, but officers have found some that created quite a commotion. It was in jugs. The cause of a case of inebriety was traced to a cache in a cornfield.

NEW YORK — Professor Charles Gray Shaw of New York university thinks perhaps all whistlers aren't morons, after all. In a modification of his previous statement, he characterizes "throat whistlers" as "real musicians." He still inclines to the opinion that "lip whistlers" are moronically bent.

LONDON — Mahatma Gandhi, who observes a weekly day of silence, knows what a prayer meeting is like in President Hoover's church. He attended a Friends' meeting with Lord Sankey. The assembly sat for half an hour, then rose and dispersed. Not a word was spoken throughout the meeting.

Football Game To Be Feature of Broadcasts

TED HUSING'S description of the University of Nebraska-Northwestern university football game at Evanston, Ill., will be broadcast Saturday at 3:30 p. m. over the WABC-Columbia network. Husing will stop at Evanston enroute to Philadelphia from St. Louis to continue his covering of the World Series.

WABC-Columbia network carries the broadcast Saturday at 10 p. m. of Hank Simmons' Show Boat dramatic company in "The Winning Hand," a play of dashing heroes, villainous villains and beautiful ladies. Phil Maher did the radio adaption. Simmons plays the hero role, assisted by DeWitt Schuyler, Happy Jack Lewis and Joe Carroll, among others.

In keeping with the current world baseball series Graham McNamee tells of his greatest thrill from announcing eight of the series. It was during the final game of the 1926 series in New York City when the veteran pitcher, Grover Cleveland Alexander, who recently played in Marion, was rushed to the rescue of Jesse Haines, struck out Lazzeri with bases full and saved the championship for St. Louis.

The most dramatic action, according to McNamee, was in 1923 when the New York Giants and the New York Yankees were competing for the world title. The Yankees had won three games to two for the Giants, but the Giants were apparently winning the sixth game by a 4 to 1 lead in the eighth inning. Bob Meusel then stepped up, McNamee related, knocked out a single and started a four-run rally that won the title for the Yankees.

John Goodman, junior production man at the NBC Chicago studios tells the story of a promise made good. As he was conducting a party of visitors through the studio over six months ago a woman in the party promised to send him a pass for an airplane ride. And sure enough, Goodman received the pass by mail the other day.

THREE TO OF FAME

Brough and Browne rnalistic Honor at O. S. U.

Associated Press

:S, O., Oct. 2—The arren G. Harding, John d Charles F. Browne dded to the Journalism ne at Ohio State uni-were chosen from nine ilitted in the fourth an- f fame election, and d by a jury of 40 news- and women, in coopera- e university school of Their names will be hall at a dinner to be held here, probably late in November.

Until a few months before his death, President Harding was identified with Ohio journalism over a period of nearly 40 years. He began his newspaper work with the Marion Mirror in 1884. Not long afterwards he bought The Marion Star and in the years that followed brought in its prominence and success.

At the age of 20, John Brough and his brother, Lawrence, started the Western Republican and Advertiser at Marietta. In 1843, two years later, they bought the Ohio Eagle at Lancaster, and published that paper for five years. In 1841 the brothers purchased the Phoenix at Cincinnati, and changed its name to the Enquirer. They sold it in 1848.

John Brough served in the legislature and as state auditor. He was elected governor in 1863, and died in office two years later.

While on the staff of the Cleveland Plain Dealer Browne began his contributions under the name of Artemus Ward that were to make him famous. He later went to New York to write for Vanity Fair, then a humorous weekly. He later left that publication to travel and lecture. As a humorist he won a reputation that took him to England, where he entertained the public until his death.

Elections to the Ohio Journalism Hall of Fame are limited to Ohioans who have been leaders in journalism, either in Ohio or elsewhere. Nominees are not eligible until they have been at least five years dead, and a two-third vote of the jury is required for election.

FIFTY YEARS AGO in New York there lived a small boy, son of Tom Lee, Chinese. And a Christian woman. He was a Baptist, nominally, and educated at New York University. Today, that boy, under the name of Frank W. Lee, is foreign minister of China.

His career recalls an older, more interesting Mongolian, Attila, king of the Huns. Attila got his ideas of Christian civilization, such as it was, 1,500 years ago, in the city of Rome, went back to his native Mongolia, returned to terrify and override Europe, until he died suddenly on the night of his marriage to a young girl named Ildico. He is supposed by some to have been poisoned by her.

CANON ROGERS, chaplain to King George, says the nations should adopt a doctrine of forgiveness and Uncle Sam should lead in "constructive sympathy" in dealings with other nations.

Uncle Sam was "constructively sympathetic" to the tune of 10 billions of dollars, and was called "Uncle Shylock" for his pains. Forgiveness has been in the Lord's Prayer for a long time, but not in active use.

France never forgave Germany for taking away Alsace and Lorraine, which had previously been taken from Germany. French and German mothers will not forgive the killing of their sons.

Forgiveness has little to do with world affairs, but intelligence should teach men that war doesn't pay, and persuade them to abandon it.

26 MOTORISTS IN COURT HERE TODAY

A decrease in the number of offenses for double parking and red light crashing was shown this morning in traffic court when 26 traffic violations were listed on the blotter. This was the largest number of offenses in several weeks. Fines of $1 and $2 were paid by four of the offenders, one pleaded not guilty and the remainder will be called in later.

Violations of the two-hour parking regulation occupied the front rank with 16 tickets given out in the week. Three tickets for improper parking, one for blocking a street, two for driving past red lights and one for double parking were given out during the week. Hearing for the not guilty plea was set for this afternoon.

LINDBERGHS ESCAPE AS PLANE UPSETS

thick fog bank midway of the Kurile island chain, about half way between Petropavlovsk and Nemuro and managed to land at Ketoi island, the "black hole" of the Kuriles, upon finding a gap in the fog.

The Lindberghs moored their plane in the dangerous waters near the island and spent an anxious night. The next day the Japanese steamship Shimushiru Maru arrived at the scene in response to orders from the Japanese government.

Lindbergh described that night afloat as one of the worst in his experience.

FORMER UPSET RECALLED
Plane of Famous Couple Capsized on Mexico City Field.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct 2—The upset of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's plane in the Yangtse river today marks the second time the famous "we" couple have been in an accident.

At Valbuena field in Mexico City in February, 1929, Colonel Lindbergh and the then Anne Spencer Morrow capsized as they landed their monoplane, which had lost a wheel in the air.

Colonel Lindbergh, realizing he would either crash or tip over because of the lost wheel, piled cushions about his fiancee and zoomed the plane to such a landing that both were but slightly injured.

KVALE COMPLICATES AFFAIRS IN CONGRESS

Farmer-Labor Member Says He's Undecided How He'll Vote.

(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service).

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—Control of the next house of representatives—a prize for which both Republicans and Democrats are striving desperately — was rendered still more uncertain today when Representative Paul John Kvale, the lone Farmer-Labor member, announced he would not attend the caucus of either party, and would vote for organization purposes with this party which promised most in the way of progressive principles.

The present lineup of the house is 216 Republicans, 214 Democrats with six vacancies.

If the Republicans fill three of these vacancies and the Democrats three—as expected—the party lineup will remain tied at 217 each, with Kvale constituting the theoretical balance of power.

Already they are calling the young, good-looking Minnesotan "Mr. Balance of Power," and they are courting him assiduously. Shrewd, intelligent, and experienced in politics despite his youthful years—he is 35—Kvale realizes the peculiar position in which fate has placed him. And naturally he is going to realize on it.

"Frankly," he told International News Service today, "I cannot say at this time with which party I will vote for organization purposes."

HOOVER PLANS NEW PROSPERITY DRIVE

President Seeks Possible Means of Piercing Depression Walls in U. S.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—A new effort to pierce the walls of depression is under serious consideration at the White House.

President Hoover is devoting most of his time to its study. Although its nature is being withheld for the present, a high authority stands responsible for the statement that the chief executive has before him details of a fresh offensive against economic conditions.

With five of his lieutenants who keep closest tabs on these conditions, Mr. Hoover spent many of his office hours yesterday peering intently into various angles of the problem.

An hour before callers customarily arrive at the White House, Under-Secretary Mills of the treasury, one of the chief advisers of the administration, was closeted with the President. For half an hour they conferred, and as he emerged Mills initiated the policy of silence which hung over the day's conference. He smilingly declined to talk.

Mills was followed by Governor Meyer of the federal reserve board; Secretaries Lamont and Stimson of the commerce and state departments, and J. C. Roop, director of the budget.

Woman Has "Managed" Nearly 4,000 Marriages

By International News Service

SAN FRANCISCO—Outstripping even the record of DeWolf Hopper who has managed many weddings during his career, Miss Jessy Rhoades, the world's premier wedding manager, with a record of nearly 4,000 marriage parties behind her, stopped in San Francisco the other day.

To be exact, Miss Rhoades has managed 3950 ceremonies for the Little Church of the Flowers in Glendale and its sister chapel, the Wee Kirk Among the Heather.

Unique in a profession that is in itself unique, Miss Rhoades has directed 7916 persons down the aisle to the altar, until now the Church of the Flowers is perhaps even better known for weddings than New York's celebrated Little Church Around the Corner.

From her vast experience Miss Rhoades formed the conviction that most of the established wedding traditions are "all wrong."

Bridegroom Calm

"The bridegroom is not always nervous," she said. "In fact, the nervous bridegroom is rather the exception.

"Nor are brides superstitious about Friday. Parents of the bridal pair do not always weep and brides, scorning the admonition of the old rhyme about 'something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue,' seldom wear anything old."

These are just a few of her deductions, made from the 17 weddings a week she has managed since taking up her work in 1925.

Although most weddings move smoothly and on time, those which are delayed, most frequently are held up through the forgetting of the marriage license or the loss of the bridal bouquet, she disclosed.

Changing etiquette through the years is most noticed in the marriage of those who have been married before, Miss Rhoades said.

Customs Change

Formerly the second or succeeding marriages must be absolutely informal. But nowadays, while the bride who has been married before will have a simple wedding, she may have attendants.

In speaking of her many interesting experiences Miss Rhoades told of the nervous bridegroom who announced in a clear voice,

"With this wing I thee red."

She also told of the shortest wedding ceremony on record, related to her by a clergyman officiating at one of them.

"The ceremony, said to have been in vogue in Montana in pioneer days was simply the command, 'Arise. Grab hands. You're hitched.'

"Those who ask for a short service would like that," Miss Rhoades remarked.

JOBLESS IN GLASGOW PROTEST CUT IN DOLE

Member of Parliament Arrested as 50,000 Riot Over Proposed Slash.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 2—Bitter rioting against reductions in the dole by unemployed in Glasgow, last night was led by a member of parliament.

John McGovern, Labor M. P., who engaged in a brawl in the house of commons, several weeks ago, was arrested on charges of forming a mob in Glasgow and he and a number of his followers spent the night in jail.

Some 50,000 persons assembled on the Glasgow green last night in defiance in order by police that they could not hold a meeting. McGovern and his lieutenants refused to disperse the gathering and mounted officers rode into their midst.

Hatchets, hammers, iron bars, and broken bottles were brought into play against batons as the mob slowly gave way. Routed at length, the rioters smashed into shops and looted shelves as they fled.

Meanwhile, several constables had forced their way through to McGovern's side and attempted to move him and his four bodyguards. The men resisted and a sharp struggle ensued in which they got the worst of it.

In London and Bristol demonstrators peacefully showed their antagonism to the government's economy measures by parading with signs reading "Not a penny off the dole," "Down with the national government," and "We support our naval comrades," referring to the recent naval mutiny over pay reductions.

CARMEN TO OPEN DRIVE WITH DINNER

Railway Union To Campaign for New Members.

A membership campaign starting with a supper Oct. 15 at Labor hall was voted last night at the meeting of Erie lodge No. 1008, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen at the hall. An appeal to the lodge for civic and organization cooperation for a "Better Marion" was made by Vernon E. Goff, chairman of the organization committee of the Central Labor union, who was guest speaker at the meeting.

The lodge voted to give aid and support to the placing of a bed for transients in the Salvation Army hall after a request made by the Central union for support in its plan for service this winter.

FINDS OLD HOME TOWN CHANGED

Former Resident Sees San Francisco After 75 Years.

By International News Service

SAN FRANCISCO—Edward B. Willis hardly recognized the old town — San Francisco — when he came back.

Several rather important changes had taken place since he was here last.

For one thing, it wasn't San Francisco then, but Verba Buena, a rip-snortin' gun-totin' collection of shacks on a mud flat with the raging temperature of the height of the gold rush.

For another thing, the Montgomery street water-front at which he disembarked was found to be a mile from the present Ferry building and laden with skyscrapers, the heart of the city's financial district.

"Well, I'll swan," remarked Willie, as he looked at the skyline. "When I left there were six churches, 500 saloons and a lot of tents to live in."

Willis, 87 years of age now, from the Confederate Soldiers' Home at Richmond, Va., departed from San Francisco 75 years ago.

"It was in 1852," he recalled, "that my two brothers, my mother and I came across the Isthmus of Panama on mules and up the coast to the Golden Gate on an old windjammer."

Willis' father, Edward J. Willis, was a Whig and was the first judge of court sessions at Sacramento, sentencing the first men ever legally hanged in California.

MRS. COLLINGS WILL VIEW TWO SUSPECTS

Widow of Slain Yachtsman on Way to Florida, Where Pair Are Held.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—Before another day dawns, Mrs. Benjamin Collings will have a chance to say definitely whether the two men being held at Daytona Beach, Fla. had anything to do with the murder of her husband.

With her lawyer, William A. Kelly; her sister-in-law, Miss Helen Collings; Fred Gunder, assistant district attorney, of Suffolk county, Mrs. Collings left last night for Daytona Beach. She is due to arrive there late tonight. Before deciding to make the journey, Mrs. Collings studied photographs of the two men—Dr. Leslie D. Ritchie, 51, and his son, William, 23.

She said, after looking at telephotoed pictures, she could not be sure but that she doubted if the Ritchies were the men who boarded her husband's cruiser the night of Sept. 9, killed him and then abducted her.

One lead in the murder investigation collapsed late yesterday when it developed that a body washed ashore on Long Island sound Tuesday was not that of William Smith, as had been supposed. William Smith was an acquaintance of the Ritchies. He was located in Bloomfield, N. J., and said he knew nothing about the Collings case.

INQUEST CLOSED

Coroner William B. Gibson, formally ended the inquest with this statement: "I find that Benjamin P. Collings met his death on the morning of Sept. 10, 1931, in the waters of Long Island sound as a result of injuries inflicted by person or persons unknown and that the direct cause of death was drowning."

Senator Hebert Talks a Little.

United States capital and labor have displayed a commendable inclination to consider the possibilities of unemployment insurance with an open mind. They are not sold on the idea, many of their representative thinkers are frankly skeptical of the merits claimed for it. But, on the whole, they are willing to give it a fair chance to sell itself to them if it can.

This open-minded attitude does not seem to have influenced Senator Hebert, chairman of the special senatorial committee created to investigate unemployment insurance. The committee will hold hearings, starting October 15, with a view to submitting a report when congress convenes, yet, on September 29, Senator Hebert, in an address to a gathering of insurance underwriters and agents, revealed that his mind is made up on the question. He does not believe unemployment insurance, if it could be worked out on a satisfactory actuarial basis, would prove a major factor in unemployment problems, and he takes no pains to hide his doubt that the insurance ever could be given a sound actuarial basis.

Certainly Senator Hebert has contributed nothing in his speech, prepared for insurance men, that could not have waited until his responsibilities as the chairman of a committee making a presumably impartial investigation of unemployment insurance were concluded. It would seem, indeed, that he holds those responsibilities so lightly that he sees nothing unwise in discounting in advance all testimony favorable to unemployment insurance by airing his own unfavorable views. It is to be hoped that the other members of his committee will retain at least the semblance of an open-minded attitude until they have heard the testimony to be given before them.

Attacked by a vicious bull, a woman of Leonardtown, Maryland, was rescued by a dog, which so fiercely attacked the bull that the woman, who had been knocked down and trampled, was able to get up and escape. Scarcely a day passes that there isn't one or more news items to augment the army of dog lovers.

John Gould Fletcher says that "most schools in America are simply places for parroting facts." The way our schools and universities have been picked on of late, we are beginning to feel sorry for them.

Elsie McCormick holds that "a crying need of the world today is a Marquis of Queensbury who will lay down rules governing feminine hostilities." What, has the D. A. R., or some other big organization of women folks, been meeting again?

The corn is so high out in Indiana this year that it makes "blind corners" at cross-roads, which resulted in the deaths of two persons and the injury of eight others in automobile accidents in one county out there over the week-end, and a campaign is on to get farmers to plant potatoes or some smaller crop in corners of corn fields next year. That's boosting Indiana soil for corn-growing purposes, we'll say.

Archaeological Futurities.

Some time, after future ice invasions have changed the geography of the world as it is known now, and when uninhabited lands have become inhabited, workmen excavating for new buildings will come across a hard-shelled "monster" shaped like the primitive airships of the early "alloy age." Great derricks will lift it out of the ground and archaeologists will be called to examine it.

Investigation will disclose that this was a mechanical device used, apparently, to travel under water. Its presence will be interpreted as evidence that water once covered the region in which it was discovered. Many books will be consulted by learned men, who finally will place the device as being familiar to men after the year 1900. People will be surprised that such a primitive civilization as existed then could have known so much about machinery.

The "submarine device" will be placed on exhibition in the national museum, and will soon be forgotten among thousands of other relics from the steel age. Tourists will give it a passing glance and murmur, "how exceedingly quaint." But one day they will be surprised to read in the daily digest of new discoveries that Professor Eruditus Ultimatum has unearthed very ancient books preserved in a vacuum, and that among them is one that describes how the "submarine in which Sir Hubert Wilkins successfully attempted an under-ice voyage to the North Pole was sunk in the north seas upon completion of the trip." The mystery will have been solved. Some time later, perhaps, archaeologists will be put to work explaining the presence of pieces of material resembling primitive airplane parts discovered in south polar regions. And people of that time will be willing to concede, perhaps, that there was a good deal going on back in the 1900's and that they owe a lot to the civilization that was struggling along then.

Fathers Are Human.

Splitting up an old tradition is like splitting a hickory log. It takes a wedge here, another there, a lot of hammering and hacking, then some more wedges.

It is a tough old tradition, for instance, that prospective fathers, pacing corridors while somewhere in the dazzling hospital maze their sons and daughters were being born, don't count for much. Nurses snub them, doctors patronize them, and orderlies look them up and down with that maddening bovine curiosity so common to unintelligent and unsympathetic persons.

The general attitude is: "We have all we can do to look after the mother without bother about the father." But the father, prodded on by his own unruly emotions, is unable to stay in the background. He must ask questions, look frightened and pace up and down. He would be an unfeeling brute if he didn't and yet nothing is done to make things easier for him.

That is, it isn't the general practice to make things easier for him. There have been exceptional cases of hospitals making provisions for anxious fathers, of course. Each case has been another wedge breaking up the tradition that fathers shall suffer without attention. It is pleasant, therefore, to make notice of an especially fat wedge driven in by the Doctors' hospital in New York City, which has gone the whole way in providing accommodations for anxious fathers.

The Doctors' hospital has an entire floor given over to rooms where husbands may do their worrying in comfortable surroundings, and where they receive frequent bulletins about the wife and baby. There is a common dining-room where they can eat together, brag and play games. There is a gymnasium where they can forget themselves in physical exercise. There is even a barber shop where they can be shaved and otherwise restored after sleepless night. The Doctors' hospital in brief, has recognized that the pa.by who pays the bills is entitled to attention. That's what might be called a common sense wedge.

Congressman Cable, of the Fourth Ohio district, has wired President Hoover, suggesting that the latter extend his war debt moratorium plan by making it include personal obligations. It may be observed that the Lima congressman isn't overlooking a chance to do a little advertising.

A Cincinnati gangster is dead as the result of wounds suffered when other gangsters fired slugs through his "bullet-proof" car. It seems that the "bullet-proof" cars of the gangsters are as phony as the $20,000 "silver" coffins exploited in the funeral stories of some of them who have met their just dues.

Senator Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri, is urging the Filipinos to send a new mission to Washington to help him put over the Philippine independence bill of which he is a joint author. Thus Mr. Hawes has given Missouri another illustration of the folly of being careless in the selection of a senator.

"The world is going on steadily, horribly," David Lloyd George is quoted as having said recently, "stupidly marching to the next war, singing the songs of peace and preparing for war." How different the song of Lloyd George since he is out from what it was when he was in control!

If the other nations parties to these disarmament conferences were as dilatory about building up to the limits of the agreements as the United States has been following first the Washington and then the London conference, another conference or two wouldn't leave a warship of any consequence afloat.

Editorial Opinion.

LETTING SOMEBODY ELSE DO IT.

We are living in a wonderful world. That may have a familiar sound, but it is coming to have a new meaning. Everybody knows about the great modern inventions and labor-saving devices. Between electrical refrigerators, fireless cookers and self-acting toasters thousands of housewives are finding themselves without employment, and in sheer desperation are compelled to kill time by playing bridge and having their hair dressed. Now efficiency is reaching a stage where husbands are also finding themselves bereft of responsibility. When the head of the family goes on a trip now he is to be relieved of all the troublesome details. One of the big telegraph companies is sponsoring the new scheme. It will place at hostess at the disposal of the harried traveler. For instance, here is a sample telegram which goes to New York in advance of the tourists:

"Arriving 10 a. m. Pennsylvania. Please recommend respectable hotel. Wife wishes hairdressing appointment 11 o'clock. Would like quaint restaurant luncheon in Greenwich village, tea, dancing and night-club reservations for two. For afternoon recommend shops for purchasing traveling clothes. Deliver flowers before theater with note, 'Tribute to our first happy days, love, Charlie.' Signed, Charlie Jones, Bay City, Michigan."

Thus father may go on now leading an effortless life. He does not even have to think. Some one does that for him. When Mother's day arrives he finds a ready-made telegram guaranteed to make the recipient happy. If a relative or friend dies an appropriate message of condolence goes forth. Is some one that he cares for sailing for Europe? He picks up the telephone and a basket of fruit and a bon voyage card are delivered to the ship. It is all very simple, and works on the old theory of "Let George do it." There is only one thing left for the old man and, unfortunately, he can not delegate that to anybody else. He must continue to pay the bills.

If some ingenious person could devise a scheme by which another would pay the bills, then Dad would be living in an earthly paradise.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

UNHAPPY DAY FOR AMERICA.

Mr. Stone, head of the farm board, foresees a time "when small, private farms will disappear," to give way to mass production. If that ever comes to pass it will be an unhappy day for America.

Our nation was originally built out of the soil. We still have the soil, and it is in possession of the kind of men who constructed and maintained the republic in trust. The individual, conservative American farmer has always held the balance of power politically. Displace him and put the soil under centralized control and he loses his identity and value as a conservative citizen and wholesome political and social force.

When the individual, independent American agriculturist is sacrificed to mass production the country will lose its most valuable personal element. There is nothing hopeful in Mr. Stone's forecast.—Toledo Blade.

TAX THE COMPANIES.

Editor Star—I have read through your paper the unemployment question and the different minds the people have expressed on this one subject. The one-mill levy that is being urged to be voted on this fall is what is meant. I see where one, Mr. Davidson, gives his view not in favor of such a tax. Well, now, let us think for a moment, and go back a few years, and some people will change their minds. The way I read it, the tax was to apply to all taxable property, and to be used for relief only—O.K. Doesn't all taxable property mean also manufactories as well as homes? All right then, I am in favor of the one-mill levy. Why? Because as I said just go back twelve or fourteen years. What has happened? The manufacturers started the idea that men forty-five years old were too old to work in the factories. How many men have been thrown out of employment? The next thing is automatic machinery. How many more have been thrown out of work? The next thing and one of the worst is that nearly all the factories and business has gone into Wall Street and if they can gamble on the stock market and make their money, the companies don't care whether the shops work one day a year or not. If there is a way to put a tax on the shops and factories so they will have to help to support the families that have been thrown out of work through no fault of his own—the laborer's. All men are not lazy, some want to work and can't get it. And I say for the ones that need help vote for the one-mill levy. That is the only way to get even with the one that has thrown us out. If something is not done it won't be ten years until there will only be one-third of the people working; the rest will be loafing and living off what the one-third makes. It's a disgrace to a nation to be in the shape things are at the present time. This winter will be worse. I would like to see a large tax put on all companies that they would have to keep every family that has been laid off the last two years. If men don't work they can't buy. Business could start operations on a steady basis within two weeks if the companies wanted to. I don't believe in making the man that is working and only part time at that help keep some one idle. Tax the companies. They are the ones that threw us out of work—Wall Street. I am in favor of the one-mill levy and nothing else.

A Dangerous Procedure.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Within the past few months a remarkable number of mastoid operations has been reported. The prevalence of this condition is not alarming, as mastoid disease has always been more or less common.

In the old days the simplest sort of mastoid operation caused much uneasiness and worry. There is no doubt that many young lives were lost because of hesitancy on the part of parents. Naturally they feared the operation. As a life saving measure, there are few surgical measures that surpass the mastoid operation.

A suddenly acquired inflammation of the mastoid is spoken of as "acute mastoiditis." The signs are usually very plain and there is no difficulty in recognizing the nature of the trouble.

As a rule, the trouble has been preceded by earache. Usually this occurs five or six days before the mastoid disease develops. There may be fever, as well as pain, and this is followed by a discharge from the ear.

If the patient is examined carefully, a swelling is noticed behind the ear. This sign is characteristic of acute mastoiditis. The tissues may be red and swollen, pressing upon it and forcing the ear downward and outward.

It is difficult to find out from young children whether they have pain or not. They may not complain of it. Upon pressure at a certain spot behind the ear, the extreme tenderness is made known at once. This test, however, should not be depended upon by anybody but a physician.

Continued high fever, profuse discharge from the ear or sudden stoppage of a discharge which has been present; pain, loss of appetite and restlessness are signs which should not be overlooked. When any child has these symptoms a physician should be called at once.

Acute mastoiditis is most common in children, but is met in adults. The symptoms are the same.

When the signs are less pronounced, it is well to delay the operation for a short time. However, this is a question which the surgeon will answer.

I do not wish to imply that the operation is not a serious one. But mastoid disease, if neglected, is far more serious than any operation could possibly be.

The operation has been so perfected that it is done with the minimum of risk to the patient. If it is postponed, the ultimate condition will cause your child to suffer longer. Also it may require a more extensive and serious operation than if it is attended to at once.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MRS. F.A. Q—My little five-year-old girl is anemic—what diet would you advise?

2—She has enlarged tonsils and a hacking cough which is worse at night, a very poor appetite and her color is apt to vary—sometimes very pale and again pink. The coughing is worse in the cold weather.

3—What would cause reddish rings around the eyes of an eight-year-old boy?

A—She should have plenty of leafy vegetables, liver, good rich milk, etc. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2—If her tonsils are so enlarged as to interfere with her breathing they should be removed. A condition of this kind would involve her entire system. Have your doctor advise you. A good, general tonic would build her up and strengthen her resistance.

3—Constipation or intestinal worms may be at the source of the trouble. Proper diet and exercise should keep the bowels regulated. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Homage to Michael Faraday.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

During last month British scientists celebrated Michael Faraday's discovery of the principal of induction, just a century ago. Many of his other achievements were brought to public notice at the same time. It has been suggested that Faraday was perhaps the greatest experimenter that has ever lived. He carried small apparatus around in his pocket, and constantly reflected on the problems connected with them. His diary is a monumental affair, of interest equal to its length. For he not only described his experiments, but also set down his thoughts, pioneering suggestions, and new ideas. It is difficult to state how many experiments he conducted, but his diary contains record of more than 2,000. His discoveries in chemistry and physics are numbered by the score.

It is very difficult for any one living nowadays to realize how little, of a practical nature, was known about electricity a century ago. Thousands of experiments were being made, but they seemed to lead nowhere. The battery would generate electricity continuously, as would also the electrical machine; but it could not be generated continuously in any other way.

Faraday was started towards his discovery, which followed years later, by the experiment made by the Danish scientist, Oersted, in 1821. Oersted showed that an electric current, passed over or under a magnetic needle would deflect it. Faraday became interested in the problem of the converse effect, might magnetism excite a current of electricity in a nearby wire?

It had been discovered that a core of iron in a live coil became magnetic, if the current flowed. Faraday made experiment after experiment, but none of them seemed to bring him any nearer. Finally he noted that if he thrust a bar magnet into a charged coil of wire he got a pulse, and also another pulse when he withdrew it. These were separate and discontinuous pulses. It flashed upon him that movement was necessary, relative motion between magnet and coil. After the principle of the kinema, one pulse if followed rapidly by another pulse, and so on, would likely create, not a set of discontinuous pulses, but a continuous current.

The electric machine of this type, built by Faraday, produced the continuous current desired. It was simple enough in construction—a disk of copper was placed between the poles of a big magnet, and brushes of metal rested, on the axle of the disk, and on the rim. In this way Faraday made the first dynamo. It was Tyndall who said, "This discovery of magneto-electricity is the greatest experimental result ever obtained by an investigator."—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Island of Helgoland.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Helgoland, an island with a history as checkered, dramatic and tragic as any island on the face of the earth since its dim beginnings, has the most persistent and relentless of all natural forces for an enemy. This is the sea which for untold centuries has pounded down the North Sea island to one-fifth of its original size.

The hardy folk of Helgoland have shared the tribulations of their island home. Centuries ago their livelihood depended on a great white cliff from which a very fine chalk was chipped. This was two hundred feet high until a terrific storm blew it down.

Not only was the chief financial support of the islanders thus destroyed but also their principal protection against "that ole davil sea."

This occurred early in the eighteenth century and the men of Helgoland to sustain themselves, turned to pilotage lobster catching and shooting. A windfall came their way in 1909 when the great Napoleon prohibited commerce between England and the continent. This made smuggling a gigantic trade and Helgoland became headquarters for the illicit traffic.

When the blockade was suspended the people of Helgoland established sea-baths that became famous all over the world. During the short summer season they made enough money from the tourist trade to support them throughout the year.

But in the last part of the nineteenth century England relinquished the island to Germany which brought a complete metamorphosis in Helgoland's daily existence.

The kaiser with an eye to the future set about making the set-battered island his most powerful naval outpost. A huge naval harbor was constructed and a great number of barracks were set up.

This period came to a tragic conclusion with the World war. When that great conflict rocked the world the German government, taking no chances with the loyalty of the islanders, shipped them all to Hamburg to live out the four years of the war in the Fatherland.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 2—Thoughts while strolling. Something for the psycho-analysts: In passing a certain Fifth avenue coffee I always think of Blanche Ring and Charlie Winninger. And every time I see the Paramount clock lighted up I think of Mabel Normand. Joan Crawford and Pauline Frederick have eyes alike.

Walter Wanger and his wife, Justine Johnson, retain their youthful looks more than any couple on Broadway. The only actor who looks as big off stage as on is DeWolf Hopper. The actor whose stage size is most deceiving is Dr. Rockwell. He is pint sized off stage.

I'm fed up hearing: "If we only get through this winter." We'll get through this winter and many more winters. They say several bank presidents and chairmen of boards are smuggled into offices these days through bank alleys. Ring Lardner's brother—Rex. Sylvia Field lip-sticking on a hotel stop.

John Charles Thomas, a Frostburg, Maryland, boy, who made good in the city. Those mournful tooting river tugs touch me off with the miseries. Radio fans waiting outside a broadcasting bureau for Kate Smith. Irving Hoffman, the Morning Telegraph's new Broadway columnist.

Two playwrights and four novelists who retired to southern France are returning this fall. "Securities" trouble. A grisly gag—calling them "securities." Two historical books about the old Waldorf as the new opens. Smart press work? Or coincidence? Joe Weber in smoked glasses.

Ted Healy and Fred Astaire look alike. What's become of Lillian Lorraine? Talk about "It." None today touch Lorraine in her triumphant days. Neysa McMein always has to stop to think before spelling her married name—Baragwanath. And George S. Kauffman just stuck in the "S" for swank.

Conrad Nagel has had the steadiest employment in Hollywood during the past five years. Wonder if any one else ever has a letch to trim Messmore Kendall's eyebrows? What will they do with the Radio building when Radio City is built? Or does any one care?

* * *

The de luxe speakeasies are serving equally de luxe free lunches at the cocktail hour. I am told that in one there is a huge table with ten white-capped and uniformed attendants where there are spread spiced hams, imported sardines, a surprising variety of cheese, olives and cold meats. The same place is reputed to have a square bar and a fleet of sixteen bartenders.

* * *

The longest bar I ever leaned against was on the main street in old Tia Juana, advertised as the longest in the world. So or not, on busy week ends thirty bartenders were on duty. It was considered a part of the trip over the border to start with the first bartender and drink a glass of beer with each as far as one could go down the line. Lew Cody, in his serious drinking days, reached the twenty-second barkeep, but was shaking so with uncontrollable grief that he sagged a bit at the knees. When I left him he had sent out for a horse to make the rest of the journey.

The most picturesque bar to my notion was that in the Forty-Second street corner of the old Knickerbocker. To my yokel eyes it offered the cream of worldliness. One saw the celebrated Gondorfs, Caruso, Richard Harding Davis, Nat Goodwin, Wilson Mizner and a sprinkling of international gamblers. There was, too, the head bartman "Silver King," with his strip of snow white forelock and over the bar Maxfield Parrish's sweepingly vivid canvas, "Old King Cole."

* * *

I remember distinctly that memorable Monday morning when the World first-paged momentous news that cocktails at the Knickerbocker had jumped from fifteen to twenty-five cents. The sedate old Evening Post followed it up in the afternoon with an editorial snort of indignation. It was dayed because it established a dangerous precedent. "Who knows," wrote one editorial writer, "but what New York may eventually pay a half dollar for its cocktail?"

When the Knickerbocker closed, the proprietor, James Regan, had an ordinary room filled with canes left hooked over the Knickerbocker bar.

Three Mt. Vernon Boys.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

A hundred years ago three boys whose names are familiar throughout the United States were living in Mt. Vernon, Ohio. They were the Sherman boys, John and William, and Daniel Decatur Emmett. Mt. Vernon was Emmett's birthplace. Lancaster was the boyhood home of the Shermans, but after the death of their father in his early manhood, it was necessary to find places for them in other homes. John entered the home of a cousin who was in business in Mt. Vernon, and William the home of Thomas Ewing at Lancaster. William seems to have lived later in Mt. Vernon also, for Emmett, who was seven years older than John, had many reminiscences of the Sherman boys in their school days, though it was not likely that he was in school with the Shermans for any great length of time for his school education was very limited.

In his fifteenth year, Emmett went to Norwalk to learn the printing trade in a newspaper office there, and when he was seventeen he was back in his home town working at his trade. Emmett's recollection of William T. Sherman rather controverts the common conception of the boyhood of that noted man. He has been presented as stern and sedate even as a boy, but Emmett recalled him as a rather wild youth, ready for any escapade at any time. It was his brother, John, Emmett says, who was the old young man. John was always dignified, industrious and inclined to take to the books.

Emmett must have picked up a liberal education while working at his trade, as many a printer has done. But music was his one and only passion—an inherited strain from his mother. He was self-taught, but that does not mean that it was superficial. He was but fifteen when he wrote the words and music of "Old Dan Tucker." At seventeen he was able to secure enlistment in the United States army as a bandsman; that itself is a testimonial of his ability. During his enlistment he wrote a text on drumming. Probably nothing that the outstanding composers of the popular songs of the day have produced will outlive "Dixie" or "Old Dan Tucker."

Dinner Stories.

"How do you know there is nothing important in this letter from my sister?" said she. "You haven't read it."

"No," answered he. "But I glanced over your shoulder and saw there was no postscript."

"Well dad, I just looked in to say hello."

"Too late, my boy. Your mother looked in to say hello and got all my change."

"So they insisted on a jury trial for that automobile thief?" said the tourist.

"Yes," answered Three-Finger Sam. "I don't wonder some people are complainin'. The trouble with this government is too much red tape."
